DETAIL OF SERVICES

Sorting and Processing to Linen

Our commitment to quality includes complete sorting and separation of all linen into their correct classifications prior to being washed. By properly separating textile classifications, specific formulations can be established for each specific textile type. By applying specific formulas (time, active agents, water levels and mechanical action) we can process your textiles in a manner that can enhance the longevity of your valued inventory. Standard precautions are applied by all employees regarding the handling of soiled linen.

Separate Batch Processing

At Trident Laundry, each account is processed as separate batch. This allows our production plant to operate at peak efficiency while maintaining complete separation between accounts. Specialized Processing – Micro-fiber products etc.

Trident Laundry takes extra care when processing such critical and expensive items. As with all our formulas, they are designed specifically for the goods being processes. In addition to specific formulation, these items are processed as special production by a team specifically trained for these goods.

General Linen Finishing

As washed linen emerges from the dryers, it is segregated as an account batch and staged for finishing. Washed linen are personally inspected, hand-packed and counted into the delivery cart.

Mops and Housekeeping Rags

Mops and rags are carefully processed according to classification and type. Micro-fiber mops are processed according to the manufacturer's specifications. These items are packed in bulk by classification for return delivery.
